4. Old Business:
   a. Vote on Proposed Bylaws Revision Re. Public Defenses (Section VII K.c. & d.)
      i. Current Bylaws Language (Section VII K.c. & d.):

         Section VII K. c. The oral defense of the dissertation must be announced publicly at least two weeks prior to the date of the defense.

         Section VII K. d. Not fewer than five members of the faculty, including all members of the candidate’s advisory committee, must participate in the final examination, unless written approval for a lesser number has been secured in advance from the Dean of The Graduate School.

      ii. Proposed change in by-laws language:

         Insert new Section VII K. d. between existing sections (with appropriate renumbering)

      iii. Proposed new (clean) by-laws language:

         Section VII K. d. The oral defense of the dissertation must be open to the public.

There were a few clarification questions asked by members of the council. Firstly, Neal Glaviano asked if this new language applied to master's thesis candidates as well. Associate Dean Bernstein answered that the above by-law changes only applied to Ph.D. dissertations. Secondly, Nathan Fiala expressed a concern relating to wanting to keep certain individuals out of a public defense due to potential harassment, which they had personally witnessed. Karen Bresciano stated that those issues are addressed in the student code, not within these by-laws. Finally, Andrew Wiemer asked for clarification on privacy and patent implications. Dean Holsinger said that information can still be restricted by candidate during their defense while being able to express the general premise relating to the proposal.
A vote is held for members of the Graduate Faculty Council, who approve the motion with a majority of the vote.

b. Proposed Bylaws Revision Re. Academic Dismissal (Section IV E)
   i. Current Bylaws Language (Section IV E b.):

   Section IV E. b. If at any time a student’s academic performance, progress in a graduate degree program, or professional development and/or suitability is judged by the advisory committee to be unsatisfactory to the degree that dismissal is warranted, the advisory committee must submit its written recommendation that the student be dismissed on such grounds. A major advisor may submit a written recommendation for academic dismissal to The Graduate major advisor alone submits School on behalf of the entire advisory committee, indicating the specific judgment on which the advisory committee’s recommendation is based. For a student who does not have an established advisory committee, the recommendation.

After a discussion in the previous meeting about departmental differences in “director of graduate studies,” the wording was instead updated to “designee.” It was noted that there may be more language alterations in the future relating to different programs.

Andrew Wiemer asked for more information on what departments would have to do in specific cases where, for example, a student failed their general examination twice and would typically be dismissed thereafter. Karen Bresciano said that if those are the guidelines within a particular department, it would be considered as a reasonable effort by giving them another attempt in the first place, and that this new proposal ensures that departments understand who they are dismissing and why.

A vote is held for members of the Graduate Faculty Council, who approve the motion with a majority of the vote.

i. Current Bylaws Language (Section X. D. c.):

The following issues are not managed through The Graduate School Hearing Procedures and therefore will not be forwarded to a Hearing Committee: (1) belief of an error in grading, and (2) matters addressed by other existing University policies or procedures including, but not limited to, allegations of research misconduct on federally sponsored projects, conduct proscribed by the Student Code, harassment, complaints of retaliation and/or retaliation, employment matters, and conflicts of interest. The Hearing Officer with jurisdiction (Storrs or UConn Health) may at their sole discretion determine that a complaint or appeal falls under the jurisdiction of the Student Code, the Policy on Scholarly Integrity in Graduate Education and Research, the Policy Statement on Harassment, the Policy on Conflict of Interest in Research, or any other existing University policy that provides for resolution of complaints. Should the Hearing Officer determine that the complaint should be addressed through other procedures, the Hearing Officer will notify the parties involved and refer the complaint to the appropriate University officials.

g. Proposed Bylaws Revision Re. Hearing Procedure

i. Current Bylaws Language (Section X. D. d.):

d. If the Hearing Officer decides not to convene a Hearing Committee, a rationale will be provided and the decision cannot be appealed. If a “good faith effort” was not shown, the Complainant will be encouraged to seek resolution through direct communication with the person(s) against whom the complaint is directed and/or through procedures available through the relevant graduate program, department, school or college, and university, as applicable. Note: Items noted “c” through “g” were presented in conjunction for discussion and voting.

Talia Bar asked if this removable of language would open a possibility where a student could find themselves not able to seek out a complaint option. Karen Bresciano stated that the removal of this specific process wouldn’t lead that to scenario, and students are able to complain via other avenues.
A vote is held for members of the Graduate Faculty Council, who approve the motion with a majority of the vote.

5. New Business
   a. Proposed Bylaws Revision Re. Offers for Financial Support
      i. Current Bylaws (Section IX A. c)

      Section IX A.c. An acceptance given or left in force after April 15 commits the student not to accept another offer without first obtaining a written release from the institution to which a commitment has been made. Similarly, an offer by an institution after April 15 is conditional on presentation by the student of the written release from any previously accepted offer.

      ii. Proposed change in by-laws language:

      Section IX A.c. An acceptance given or left in force after April 15 commits the student not to accept another offer without first obtaining a written release from the institution to which a commitment has been made. Similarly, an offer by an institution after April 15 is conditional on presentation by the student of the written release from any previously accepted offer. to first inform the program that they are withdrawing or resigning from the offer of financial support that they had previously accepted.

      iii. Proposed new (clean) by-laws language:

      Section IX A.c. Section IX A.c. An acceptance given or left in force after April 15 commits the student to first inform the program that they are withdrawing or resigning from the offer of financial support that they had previously accepted.

      There are many sentiments expressed by members of the council that the April 15th resolution is very difficult for their respective programs for a number of reasons, including obtaining grant funding and the difficulty in replacing a prospective student in late April. Dean Holsinger stated that this practice has been in place for two to three decades and was intended to be used for the purpose of not allowing graduate schools to get into bidding wars.

      Additionally, the university has agreed to follow this language as a part of its membership in the Council of Graduate Schools. If the Graduate Faculty Council didn’t want to adopt this language, a withdrawal from the April 15th, date may be needed. Dean Holsinger planned to discuss this matter further with various members of the council who expressed difficulty with this date.

6. Discussion Item: Expectations for Graduate Faculty
a. The members of the Graduate Faculty Council were presented with the following six broad expectations for graduate faculty and their departments:

i. Support the progress of their students toward a degree.
ii. Provide guidance to their students on scholarly, research, and creative practices and the ethics associated with such practices.
iii. Foster the professional and personal development of their students, including developing their skills in teaching and communication.
iv. Follow good practices in supervising assistantships and providing financial support.
v. Promote individual health and wellness.
vi. Build a sense of community and belonging among graduate students.

Dean Holsinger, Associate Dean Bernstein, and Mary Anne Amalaradjou emphasized that these set of guidelines were created to inform students as to what they should expect out of their mentor, as well as outline for faculty members how they should handle being an effective mentor. Additionally, it was said that underneath each of these broader categories, there will be more detailed information and resources to help support the mission of being an efficient mentor.

b. Kurt Schwenk noted that anything written down could be abused or taken incorrectly, and the way the document currently reads can be interpreted by some as a mandate rather than a set of suggestions.

c. Suzanne Wilson stated that language used in this document may not be accurately depicting graduate education as the collective entity that it is, and rather comes off as a checklist of things advisors should do for students. Wilson further emphasizes that the relationship between a graduate student and their mentor is two-directional, and these set of expectations lack a concrete sense of how to evaluate a student.

d. Amalaradjou followed up with stating a student-centered document could also be in the works, but they wanted to focus on a set of guidelines for faculty first. Additionally, she noted that some of the suggestions from Wilson would fit appropriately in this student-centered set of expectations and would enhance the two-directional ideology mentioned above.

e. Dean Holsinger encouraged all members of the council to share the document with colleagues in their department to get as much feedback as possible to refine the document.

7. Announcements
   a. Dean Holsinger noted that he will be communicating about the search for a doctoral speaker at the upcoming ceremony in May, and all faculty are encouraged to reach out to nominate a viable candidate.

8. A motion to adjourn the meeting was made by William Ouimet and seconded by Preston Britner. The Graduate Faculty Council meeting adjourned at 4:27 pm.
